ARREST RELIEVES HORNUNG WHO FEARED RECOGNITION WHILE A HUNTED FUGITIVE

Absconder Glad to Return Home; Faces the Prison

Unable to Furnish $10,000 Bond, Former Dresden Bank Cashier Is Held at Franklin County Jail--To be Arraigned on Embezzlement Charge Today -- Postmaster Wants Reward.

Columbus, O., Sept. 3.—(Bulletin) After furnishing bond in the sum of $12,500, John Hornung, who was arrested at Indianapolis Wednesday on the charge of embezzling funds of the Dresden National Bank, left here tonight for his home in Dresden.
The bond was furnished by a local surety company.

Columbus, O., Sept. 3.—John Hornung, former Dresden, Ohio, banker apprehended recently in Indianapolis after he had eluded federal authorities for several weeks, was brought to Columbus today. He was in custody of a deputy from United States Marshal Devanney's office. Hornung told the deputy he felt relieved since being in custody as he had constantly felt the strain under fear of arrest. He probably will be arraigned tomorrow.

The charge against him is embezzlement. He has spent most of the time since he left his home under an assumed name. His bond was fixed at $10,000 which he was unable to furnish and he was committed to the Franklin county jail.

Glad To Be Back.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 3.—John Hornung, the Dresden, O., bank official, who admits embezzling $50,000, consented to make the return trip to Columbus, O., yesterday without fighting extradition. He told Deputy Marshals Frank Barnhart and Charles Mikesell, who took him to Columbus, that he was glad to get back to Ohio. He said he was intending to return to his home anyway within a few weeks or as soon as the feeling against him in his home town became less intense.

Hornung was taken to Columbus via Goshen, Ind., where he was arraigned before Judge Baker of the federal court. During the time he was in the county jail here and while on the way to Columbus Hornung seemed to be more concerned about leaving his new friends in this city and the prospect of seeing his wife than he did the prison term of five years which faces him.

A New Start.

Although he is 61 years old and his hair is as white as snow, he said he had plenty of time to live and would get a new start as soon as his prison term was over. "This speculation game is a bad one," he told the federal authorities here.

Samuel G. King, the postmaster at Broadripple, whose information to the U. S. marshal's office Monday that a man answering the description of John Hornung had rented a lock box at his postoffice led to the arrest of Hornung, said he would claim the reward of $500 offered by the officials of the Dresden bank for the arrest of the defaulter.

Claims Reward.

Regarding the capture of Hornung he said: "If it had not been for me the federal authorities would never have caught him." King sent a representative to the sheriff of Muskingum county today to arrange for getting the reward.

Hornung was arrested at Broadripple, a few miles north of Indianapolis, late Wednesday when he went to the Broadripple postoffice to get mail sent to him in his own name. He had been living in this city since July 13, the day after he left his home in Dresden, under the name of John Johnson but expected some papers relating to a business transaction to come to him under his own name and rented the lock box at Broadripple, saying he was afraid the authorities here might get him if he attempted to get mail under his own name.

Claims in By Dec. 3.

That Receiver Best of the Dresden National bank of which John Hornung was cashier, is anxious to get affairs of the bank straightened out by the first of the year is evidenced by the official notice recent which has been issued by him, stating that all persons who may have claims against "The Dresden National Bank of Dresden, Ohio, must present them to John A. Best, Receiver, with the legal proof thereof, within three months from Sept. 3, or they may be disallowed.

Fine Live Stock for The Fair

The securing of a number of prize winners at the state fair as entries for the local fair was announced Friday. Twenty-two fine draft horses are among the number. One entry of 95 fine sheep was secured while a herd of cattle in which the champion yearling bull of the state was listed, will also be shown. It was said Friday that these were the best entries ever secured so early in the year. The entries were secured by Secretary W. B. Miller who returned Friday from the state fair at Columbus.

Business Men Plan To Organize Commercial Club of Coshocton

STRIKERS PLAN TO ORGANIZE

PLANT OPERATES WITH FULL FORCE

Cases Of Five Strikers Arrested Thursday May Not Be Carried Further

Whether or not the striking employes of the Coshocton Glass plant will become affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will be decided today when Arthur Muhleman, president of Trades Council, returns from Philadelphia, where he has been attending a meeting of the glass workers' union.

The strikers met last night with E. P. Miller, mine union official, and the matter of organization was discussed. It was decided, however, to await the return of Mr. Muhleman as it is understood that all departments of glass factory labor can be organized into one union.

The strikers believe that their chance of winning the fight for $2 a day would be much better if union officials were directing the matter and if the support of the federation of labor was behind them solidly.

Work Full Force.

All of the machines were in operation at the glass plant Friday for the first time since the strike commenced. The new employes, who took the places of the strikers, were secured from Rosedale, Canal Lewisville, Cloverville, Coshocton and immediate vicinity and taken past the picket line at the plant in automobiles.

It was stated last night, however, that the plant was practically idle. It is believed that operations will be resumed today.

No trouble was reported Friday and nothing further has been done in the cases of the five strikers who were arrested Thursday for intending to assault Smith Hughes. It was intimated Friday that the cases might be dropped since no prosecutors have been made to appear to press the alleged disorders.

Selling Tags.

The strikers met with only fair success Friday in selling tags but it is believed that today's proceeds will be satisfactory. A number of girls have signified their willingness to sell the tags today.

One of the strikers is said to have been selling soda pillows from house to house Friday telling prospective customers that the proceeds were to be turned over to the strikers. That he was selling the pillows on his personal profit was the statement made by strikers last night after hearing the report.

GETTING ALONG FINE

Work is progressing so swiftly on South Seventh street paving that it is thought that the first block may be thrown open to traffic on Labor day. The work is being done by the Rosser, Stewart and Harper contracting firm, of Bremen.

SOLDIER FRIENDS MEET

Dr. A. S. Metzler has as his guest, Jacob Milliron, of Juniata Pa., a comrade and bunkmate in the Civil War. These two, as beardless boys, nursed each other through typhoid fever and shared the many trials and pleasures of the service, but since being mustered out in '64 have not seen each other until Mr. Milliron stopped here on his way west.

Swimming Pool Plans Being Made

With the close of the municipal playground season in sight, the board of education is looking forward to the needs of the coming year and has already planned several new and larger features of entertainment for the kiddies.

Chief among these is a proposed swimming pool to be constructed at an estimated cost of $1000. It is thought that the pool could be constructed in the old Sycamore school building. Lockers could also be placed on this floor. The water in the pool can be slightly warmed by a furnace so as to take off the chill and can be changed as desired to prevent stagnancy.

Members of the board speak very enthusiastically about the project, the success of the playground this year having influenced the board favorably.

Gross Neglect Is Charged by Mary Dewitt

Alleging that she has been forced to depend upon her own efforts and the charity of her relatives for support, Mary Dewitt, through Attorney J. L. McDowell, commenced divorce proceedings against John Dewitt in probate court Friday.

They were married December 18, 1903, and have no children. The plaintiff claims that her husband dissipates and that he is guilty of gross neglect of duty.

She asks to be restored to her maiden name, Mary Fender, and alimony and a divorce.

KEPT IT DARK

An affadavit was filed with the mayor Friday charging Russel C. Jacobs with violating traffic ordinances by driving an auto after night without lights in the rear. A date for the hearing has not been fixed.

CAVANAUGH FUNERAL

The body of the desperado killed here last Thursday a week ago, and supposed to be that of James Cavanaugh, will be buried in South Lawn cemetery today. Short services will be held over the body in the Church of Christ with Rev. C. H. Hood officiating.

Although more than a week has elapsed, in spite of all efforts to locate friends or relatives, no one has identified the remains. Several inquiries and requests for photos and descriptions have been received, but with no results.

OFFICE SEEKERS ARE OUT

Friday Final Date For Filing Of Nominating Petitions By Candidates

TWO CANDIDATES FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Few Candidates Leave Petitions With Election Board Members Instead Of Clerk

Friday was the final date for the filing of nominating petitions by candidates for township or school district offices and quite a number of eleventh hour petitions were filed with Clerk Hammond Moffit, of the election board.

The petitions of W. H. Keenan and R. N. Barnes for members of the board of education were among those filed at the last minute. There are two members of the Coshocton board of education to be elected in November and T. L. Montgomery will withdraw from the board. Mr. Barnes is a candidate for re-election.

Here They Are

On account of the fact that candidates in various parts of the county took their petitions to members of the election board, all of the petitions have not been received at the office of the board here. However, the following list is practically complete and gives the candidates in each township and school district:

Cooperative Club to Result From Style Show--Merchants Heartily Indorse Proposal for Booster Organization--Miss Walsh Leads Popularity Contest--Miss Robinson Second.

"Let's Get Together For a Greater Coshocton." This is the slogan to be adopted by the Coshocton Commercial club which is to be an outgrowth of the Fall Festival and Style Show, to be staged in the city the week of September 14-18. The nucleus of the Commercial club was formed at the meeting of the business men of the city held in the interest of the Style Show, at Carnegie library Friday night. The get together spirit has been so prominent in preparation for the coming event that a number of the business men have already seen the possibilities that might be realized from permanent organization and while together at the meeting last night discussed plans which will make such an organization a reality. O. M. Dilts, of The Buckeye Clothing store, having conceived the idea of such a club several days ago, had prepared some cards cleverly illustrating the spirit of co-operation and bearing the slogan for the new club.

Plan Indorsed.

The idea met with instant favor among the men present and thirty-one names were signed as charter members of the club. Until after the Style Show is over little will be done toward organization but a number of plans are in embryo which if carried out promise to make the club a great factor in the progress of Greater Coshocton. Invitation to membership in the club will not be confined to business men and women alone but will take in everyone in the county interested in seeing Coshocton grow.

Increasing Interest.

The Friday night meeting revealed great interest in the coming event and while no new plans were discussed the various committees reported satisfactory progress being made in all the original plans. A new committe composed of Monroe Steele, David Davidorff and William Lynde, jr., was appointed to solicit the business men in regard to exterior decoration in order that the city may appear in gala attire for the great occasion.

Miss Walsh Leads.

Present interest still centers around the popularity contest for Queen of the Style Show. Miss Kathleen Walsh leads in this contest with a small margin, having passed with only a few votes, Miss Lucille Robinson, who until now has held the lead. Miss Robinson holds second place; Miss Marie Daugherty third; Miss Catherine Marlatt, fourth, and Miss Mary Fredrickson, fifth. Miss Stella Clarki of Roscoe, had a large number of votes balloted for her Friday, which places her among the leaders. Miss Eva Wyandt, of Newcomerstown, was entered in the contest Friday with a large number of votes and another entrants was Miss Ethel Denzer, whose friends are busy collecting votes for her with a determination to see her win.

Only one week now remains and and the effort put forth during the next few days will largely determine the winner in this interesting contest.

Letter Received From Galveston Tells of Flood

Mrs. Elnora Foster, of Roscoe has received the following letter from her brother, W. O. McKee, a former resident of Roscoe, who is now serving in the U. S. Army and is stationed at Galveston. The letter gives an interesting account of the recent storm in that city.

Galveston, Texas,
August 26, 1915.

"Well I am still right side up with care—the storm did not quite get me this time, but I do not want to ever see such another one like it. Galveston is certainly a sickly looking place, especially the outskirts. Our camp was all blown away with the exception of a few buildings—most all of us lost all we had and what was not lost was ruined by the rain. Do not know whether they are going to keep us in this hole much longer or not, but I one that we got out of here as it has sort of got me buffaloed. If it had not been for the concrete buildings that the Coast Artillery had here, we would certainly have been out of luck, what would not have been killed by the flying timbers, etc., would have been drowned. As it was we only lost a couple of men in the regiment but some of the other outfits were not so lucky, especially the ones on the other side of the bay. The people here say that this was a worse storm than the one they had in 1900. If it had not been for the sea wall there would have been but few people on the Island left to tell the tale, as it is there were several hundred lost their lives, they are finding them every day but the papers here do not let anything out to the rest of the country as they are trying to make people believe that it was not as bad as it was. The wind was only blowing at the rate of 110 miles an hour so you can imagine what a time we had before we had to have the tents. We were quartered on the government transports in the bay for four days but are now back in the old camping grounds and have things fixed up fairly well. The worst of it is the water question—Galveston gets

On the products of her soil,
And from stacks so tall and stately
Out upon the morning air
Flows the tangled smoky tresses
Like an Indian maiden's hair.

And the witchery never leaves you
Once you call Coshocton home,
Ever there remains a longing
Clinging closely while you roam,
To her absent sons and daughters
Seems to whisper "Come to me,"
And while memory doth linger
Hearts will ever turn to thee.

A Grand Affair.

Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock is the time stated on the invitation for the opening of the show, features of which will be, parades, band concerts, unveiling of windows, crowning of Style Show Queen, all stores open for display and reception during the evening but no goods for sale at that time.

All preparations for the show are progressing satisfactorily and everything points to an unprecedented success in the way of public demonstrations.

Contest Interesting.

At present, of course, interest centers on the popularity contest for Queen of the Style Show. Votes continue to come in by hundreds and the race for this distinction promises to be a lively one. Coupons from both the evening paper and The Tribune are being eagerly sought by friends of the various contestants and while large numbers of them are being cast daily it is said that others are holding theirs back intending to come in at the last minute with thousands of votes for their favorite. This being the case it is policy for those who are interested in seeing the young woman of their choice win, not only to save their own coupons but to gain the promise of as many subscribers as they can that they will save theirs for the same young woman, providing they have no particular choice.

Good Chance Yet.

While this has already been done for a number of those who were entered in the contest early, there is still a large field untouched and even yet there is time for a new contestant to be entered in the race and win. In the votes that so far have been cast, Miss Lucille Robinson, maintaines a slight lead over all others but is closely followed by Miss Kathleen Welsh and Miss Catherine Marlatt. New entrants in the contest, all of whom have a large number of votes to their credit are: Helen Vance, Orva C. Dunlap, Mabel Donaldson, Ferol Craig, Anna Newton and Jessie Gross.

MAY MAKE DYESTUFFS.

Two Big American Concerns Considering the Proposition.

New York, Sept. 2.—The Dupont De Mours Powder company and the General Chemical company, concerns which together have a capitalization of $160,0000,000, are considering the advisability of beginning the production of dyestuffs on an extensive scale. While nothing definite could be learned of the plans of either company, it was said by chemists that if they did enter this field it would go a long way toward making the United States independent of Germany so far as dyes are concerned.

Representatives of both companies have recently had long conferences with Dr. Norton, agent of the department of commerce, who is in this city to give all the aid he can on behalf of the government to men who wish to engage in the production of dyes.

For both the powder company and the chemical company the production of dyes would be a natural development. Many of the products they already use go into the manufacture of dyes. The Dupont Powder company uses great quantities of benzol and toluol in making explosives, and it is from their derivatives that most of the dyes are made. The Benzol Products company, which is connected with the General Chemical company, is already making aniline dyes.

WIDOW OF MOHR UNDER ARREST

Negroes Say She Offered Them Money to Kill Physician.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Elizabeth Blais Mohr, widow of Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, the physician who died after being shot Tuesday night while riding with Miss Emily Burger his secretary, was arrested.

Her arrest was made following the signing of confessions by George W. Healis, the negro chauffeur, who drove the machine when the shooting took place, and Victor C. Brown, the physician's discharged negro chauffeur.

Previous to Mrs. Mohr's arrest Henry Spellman, Brown's half brother, whom the discharged chauffeur mentioned in his confession, was arrested. Spellman, the police say, confessed that he fired three shots at Miss Burger and that Brown fired the shots at the physician.

Following this confession Healis, Brown and Spellman were charged with murder. They were taken to Warren for arraignment.

Police Commissioner Moulton read to Mrs. Mohr the confessions signed by Healis and Brown. Then he read to her the statement made by Spellman. She emphatically denied she had anything to do with the slaying.

Healis in his confession stated that Mrs. Mohr offered him $2,000 if he would stop the automobile when the doctor and Miss Burger were riding in it at a spot to be named by Brown.

Brown declares that Mrs. Moar offered him $2,000 if he would "get the doctor right." "She told me to be sure and kill him," said Brown.

Charged With Killing Father.

Cadiz, O., Sept. 2.—David Morris one of the wealthiest farmers of Cadiz township is dead, and his son Claude, twenty, is under $2,000 bond, charged with the murder of his father, the deed having been committed with an ax. Zanesville Conference Continued

Routine work of the annual Muskingum conference of the Methodist Protestant church now in session at the Conference Memorial M. P. church in Zanesville, will be taken up today.

The social meeting was held Thursday night beginning with a banquet and reception, the hosts of which were members of the Adult Brotherhood class.

Following the devotionals on Thursday morning, which were conducted by Rev. O. V. Sharrick, the ministers held a business meeting in the Sunday school room and the laymen met in the church proper and discussed subjects of interest. This was followed by a joint meeting when reports from the separate meetings were read. This is the first time in the history of the conference that separate meetings were held by the laymen and ministers but it was decided to hold one meeting of that kind at each conference and that topics for discussion should be outlined.

From the laymen's meeting was brought to the conference the fact that the official board of the church should attend to the finances, instead of the ministers doing that, thus giving the pastors more time to devote to the spiritual welfare of their churches.

Hot Stuff

Interesting to All. Room No. 22, Park Hotel Still The Palace of Joy. Dr. Frederick Blankner the Specialist was arrested because he had no Dental License which he does not need. Read on and you will rejoice.

Dr. Frederick Blankner the specialist came to Coshocton two weeks ago and announced through this paper that he treated complicated chronic diseases successfully.

In recent years the medical profession discovered that diseased teeth had a wonderful effect on the general systemic condition. The medical journals as well as the newspapers are full of warnings to the people of the great dangers of disease teeth to the general physical condition. Pyorrher or Riggs disease has been found through laboratory work to influence all of the vital organs and the poisons excreted by the germs effected by the lungs, liver, heart, kidneys and the nervous system. For the past twenty-five years or more Dr. Blankner through his observation of treating chronic diseases recognized that one of the most important factors to look after in the treatment of disease was the teeth. Dr. Blankner has passed through a school of experience that very few men indeed have ever had the opportunity to pass through.

When he came to Coshocton he had the endorsements of the very best men in the State of Ohio. His reputation is unquestioned and his wonderful success naturally excites the envy of his brothers who are trailing along and to satisfy their envy they throw stones of embarrassments and do all they can to head off the people.

It is supposed that some of the dental profession got very busy with the Secretary of the State Dental Board who has recently been elected to that position through political influence. He is a young man, bright seemingly along some lines and desires to reform the dental profession which God and man knows needs reforming but he has started in on trying to suppress efficiency instead of trying to lock up the channels of inefficiency. With his high official authority he had to do something. The dentists demand it and so he has done it by swearing out a warrant to the effect that Dr. Blankner had never received a dental license from the great State Board of Dental Examiners who have never been possibly examined for their qualifications, but want to pass on the qualifications of all who want to enter the domain of dental practice.

It never occurred to him that Dr. Blankner has made no claims to be a dentist in this State although he is registered as a dentist in other places. Dr. Blankner has qualified as a medical practitioner and his diploma is from one of the leading recognized schools. Dr. Blankner's diploma is merely an evidence that he has fulfilled all the requirements of his college. It does not guarantee his efficiency but on the contrary he has to deliver the goods otherwise there would be no room for him among so many in his line of work. Dr. Blankner has always been recognized as a top-notcher and in a class by himself. Original, experienced, educated, practical, honest and a doer of things.

The sick and afflicted have always sought his services. He is a very busy man and among some of the things he does is to extract teeth without pain. Not only without pain, but with skill, grace, science and with the very best results.

When a person comes to consult him one of the very first things essential in an examination is to see what condition the teeth are in. All up to date physicians do this. Many people that come to him have a mouthful of rotten teeth. If Dr. Blankner would advise them to go to the dentist to have them extracted, they would reply, "not on your life because I do not want to be killed, would prefer to die a natural death." but when Dr. Blankner tells them that they can sit down in an ordinary rocking chair, and have their teeth extracted one after the other so easily that they will smile and say God bless the Doctor then they fall into line and rejoice. Dr. Blankner just simply can't be beat in dental surgery and he has a supreme right to practice dental surgery because it is good medical treatment and all the cases that come to him do so in emergency. You have many dentists in Coshocton and in the surrounding towns. Not from them. I do not. You know their class of work that they do and if you like it, go to them and if not, go where you please as for this you do not have to have a license for it is a civil privilege. Dr. Blankner does not claim to practice dentistry per se but in part of his treatment he is compelled to extract teeth. When a person comes to him with an abcess the only way he knows how to treat an abcess is to remove the cause and if it is a tooth that is out so extract it. If a person comes to him with facial neuralgia caused by the diseased condition of the teeth and the teeth are beyond the skill of a dentist to repair then of course he has to extract them. Dr. Blankner gets cases that for years have suffered with their teeth. Yet all these dentists were in the neighborhood before Dr. Blankner came to Coshocton. They advertise to extract teeth without pain, but the people know better, when they come to Room No. 22, Park Hotel they realize that Dr. Blankner is an expert in dental surgery and does the work to their entire satisfaction. Dr. Blankner is going to increase the health rate of Coshocton, by pretty indeed fold before he leaves. People are coming to him from Newcomerstown, Cambridge, Millersburg, Zanesville and points far and near and still they have dentists without number in all of this section. But they want fresh eggs and that is the reason why they come in emergency to Room No. 22, as a few cases that follow will tell you. Mrs. W. Van Cox, of Layland dropped in at room No. 22, and a more surprised woman you never saw and yet in a few minutes she had out two twenty-nine teeth that were ruining her health and which she had suffered for years. Did she smile and say God Bless the Doctor? You bet she did, a hundred times. Mr. Henry Norris was in need of a little oral surgery and likewise he had out 10. Mr. John Stevenson had an emergency case for your life and when his teeth were removed he said Doctor I would have gladly paid you a hundred had I known how easily you could do the work and had that been your price I would have paid it without a murmur. Mr. W. M. Miller visited the Palace of Joy and said Doctor if you fail to get my teeth, then indeed I will never try again as I have been to them all. What happened his teeth were extracted and when he left said I am going to send in a small army of people to you tomorrow. Mrs. M. B. Shroyer, 743 Poplar St. had out 13 and her joy can't be described. Mrs. J. M. Reed, R. R. No. 6, had out 10 and you should have heard her talk in her gratitude for the opportunity given by Dr. Blankner. Now if you want to come to Room No. 22, Park Hotel the place is open to you in welcome if you have an emergency case and if you want to go elsewhere likewise you have your choice.

If afflicted in any way with a complicated chronic disease make a Little Journey to Room No. 22, and meet Dr. Blankner in a heart to heart talk.

Until Sat. Sept. 11th. Office hours 9 A. M. to 8 P. M. Sunday 9 to 12 M. Phone service. Doctor's wife in attendance. —(Adv.)

CALE STOPS TARGET PRACTICE

Sixty Mile Wind Drives War Vessels Into Harbors.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 3.—With a severe northwest gale sweeping the Atlantic coast the program of the Atlantic fleet at target practice off the Virginia capes was almost completely disarranged. The wind was accompanied by a steady rain and a mist hung over the water, making it impossible to see a target fifty yards away. The mist was so thick at Cape Henry the government observer could not distinguish passing ships. The wind reached a velocity of sixty miles. The seas became too rough for the torpedo boat destroyers and many of them sought shelter in Lynnhaven Bay and Hampton Roads. The fifth and seventh groups steamed into Hampton Roads and anchored out of the blow. Several targets are reported to have been cast adrift by the storm.

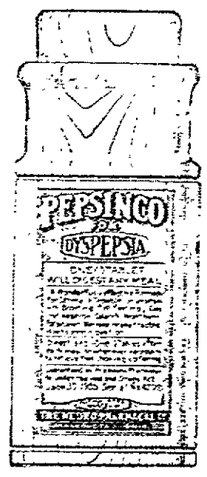

Will Not Search Greek Boats.

Paris, Sept. 3.—An Athens dispatch reports the signing in Greece of a final agreement with the entente powers concerning commerce and navigation, by which Greece agrees to take the strictest measures for the suppression of trade in contraband articles, while the entente powers consent to the free exportation of tobacco and raisins as before the war and the importation from the British colonies of all goods exclusively reserved for individual consumption in Greece. The agreement provides for the immediate discontinuance of the search by allied warships of Greek boats plying between Greek ports.

MAY HELP MANUFACTURERS.

Congress to Be Asked to Legislate Against German Dyestuffs.

Washington, Sept. 3. — The Washington administration is likely to take steps that will give American manufacturers who use dyestuffs and chemicals relief from the embarrassments that have confronted them as a result of the suspension in the shipment of such products from Germany since the war began. In normal times Germany practically holds a monopoly in the sale of dyestuffs and chemicals, and the United States as well as other countries has grown accustomed to depend upon this source of supply. It is beginning to be regarded here as imperative that American manufacturers be protected from a recurrence of the loss of time and money that has resulted from their failure to get regular supplies of chemicals and coal tar products in recent months.

At the forthcoming session of congress legislation probably will be offered designed to encourage the development of chemical and dyestuff manufacture that will assure a steady output of such products if at any time in the future a war should tie up transatlantic trade as it has in the past year.

GREAT VICTORY FOR ITALIANS

Austrian City of Rovereto Captured After Long Struggle.

Rome, Sept. 3.—Rovereto, the largest Austrian city to fall before the Italian armies, is being slowly occupied by Emmanuel's troops. The Rovereto forts, which blocked the Italian advance on Trent, only thirteen miles away, were blown up and the Austrians evacuated the city, retreating northward up the Adige valley, in the direction of Trent.

Before retiring the enemy demolished all the historic Italian monuments and set fire to the homes of Italian residents. After the garrison had withdrawn Austrian artillery, stationed on the heights overlooking the town from the north, poured a heavy fire into Rovereto, completing the work of ruin. These batteries were engaged by the Italian gunners and partly silenced.

The capture of Rovereto marks the greatest single victory in the Italian advance upon Trent, the goal of General Cadorna's forces in the north. Though the Austrians have constructed barricades across the valley between Rovereto and Trent, military men here believed the Italian troops will approach Trent itself before winter halts military operations.

The city of Rovereto, lying sixteen miles north of the Italian frontier has been under long range bombardment for many weeks. The civil population of about [illegible] left early in June, but the garrison, occupying strong positions, continued its resistance until the movement of Italian troops through the Val Sugana region and also from the west threatened their envelopment.

CHIEF KILLS BANDIT

After Having His Skull Fractured by Blow With Hammer.

Hingham, Mass., Sept. 3.—After Police Chief Washington I. James of Hingham had been overpowered and brutally beaten in Hingham jail by James Harmon and Robert Williams of Syracuse, N. Y., automobile bandits, the chief pursued the escaping fugitives and shot and killed Harmon on Mills road, firing from an automobile at the fleeing men. After he killed Harmon the chief kept on in pursuit of Williams.

Soon after starting pursuit of the second bandit, Chief James collapsed. It was found that his skull had been fractured by a blow from a hammer wielded by one of the bandits when they attacked him in the jail.

When the chase began warning was telephoned to homes around the town for women to keep indoors until Williams was rounded up, as he was known to be armed and desperate. He was captured later by Officer Adams of the Hingham police.

Strike at Tod Plant.

Youngstown, O., Sept. 3.—Workmen employed in the munitions making department of the William Tod company, manufacturing machinists here, went on a strike for higher wages. The men demand 42 cents per hour for roughers and heaters and 36 cents per hour for operators and greasers. A compromise offered by the company was refused. Over 100 men engaged in the manufacture of shells and shrapnel for the allies are affected. The plant is [illegible] by the strikers. This is the first labor trouble this company has had in many years.

THE JEWISH NEW YEAR

The following article concerning the Jewish New Year's Day has been issued by the Jewish Holidays Press Notice Bureau, of Cincinnati.

New Year's Day will begin on Wednesday evening, September 8th, with an ornate solemn Service in the Temples and Synagogues. The Thursday morning service comprises a more elaborate form of worship and combines some vestiges of antique ritual with expressions of human experiences and feelings true and real for everybody and at all times.

The Jewish New Year's Festival is the oldest of all festivals celebrated in the civilized world. But it is unique for its significance as well as for its antiquity. The secular New Year on January 1st is a day of gratifications; men rejoice in what they have achieved; it is a day for sordid inventories. The Jewish New Year's Day, however, is a time for serious thought on the Meaning of Life: it evokes pious contemplation of the difficult and inevasible problem as to right and wrong and its appeal is not that we should get more out of practical life but value more genuinely, more truthfully, more morally the life God has entrusted to us.

Much of the success and failure of our work depend, not upon our equipment, but upon our motives. The Jewish New Year's Day, accordingly, is placed by a wise tradition at the beginning of Autumn, when men enter upon their enterprises and obligations with zest and zeal. Just then they need a right interpretation of life and a true measure of its values.

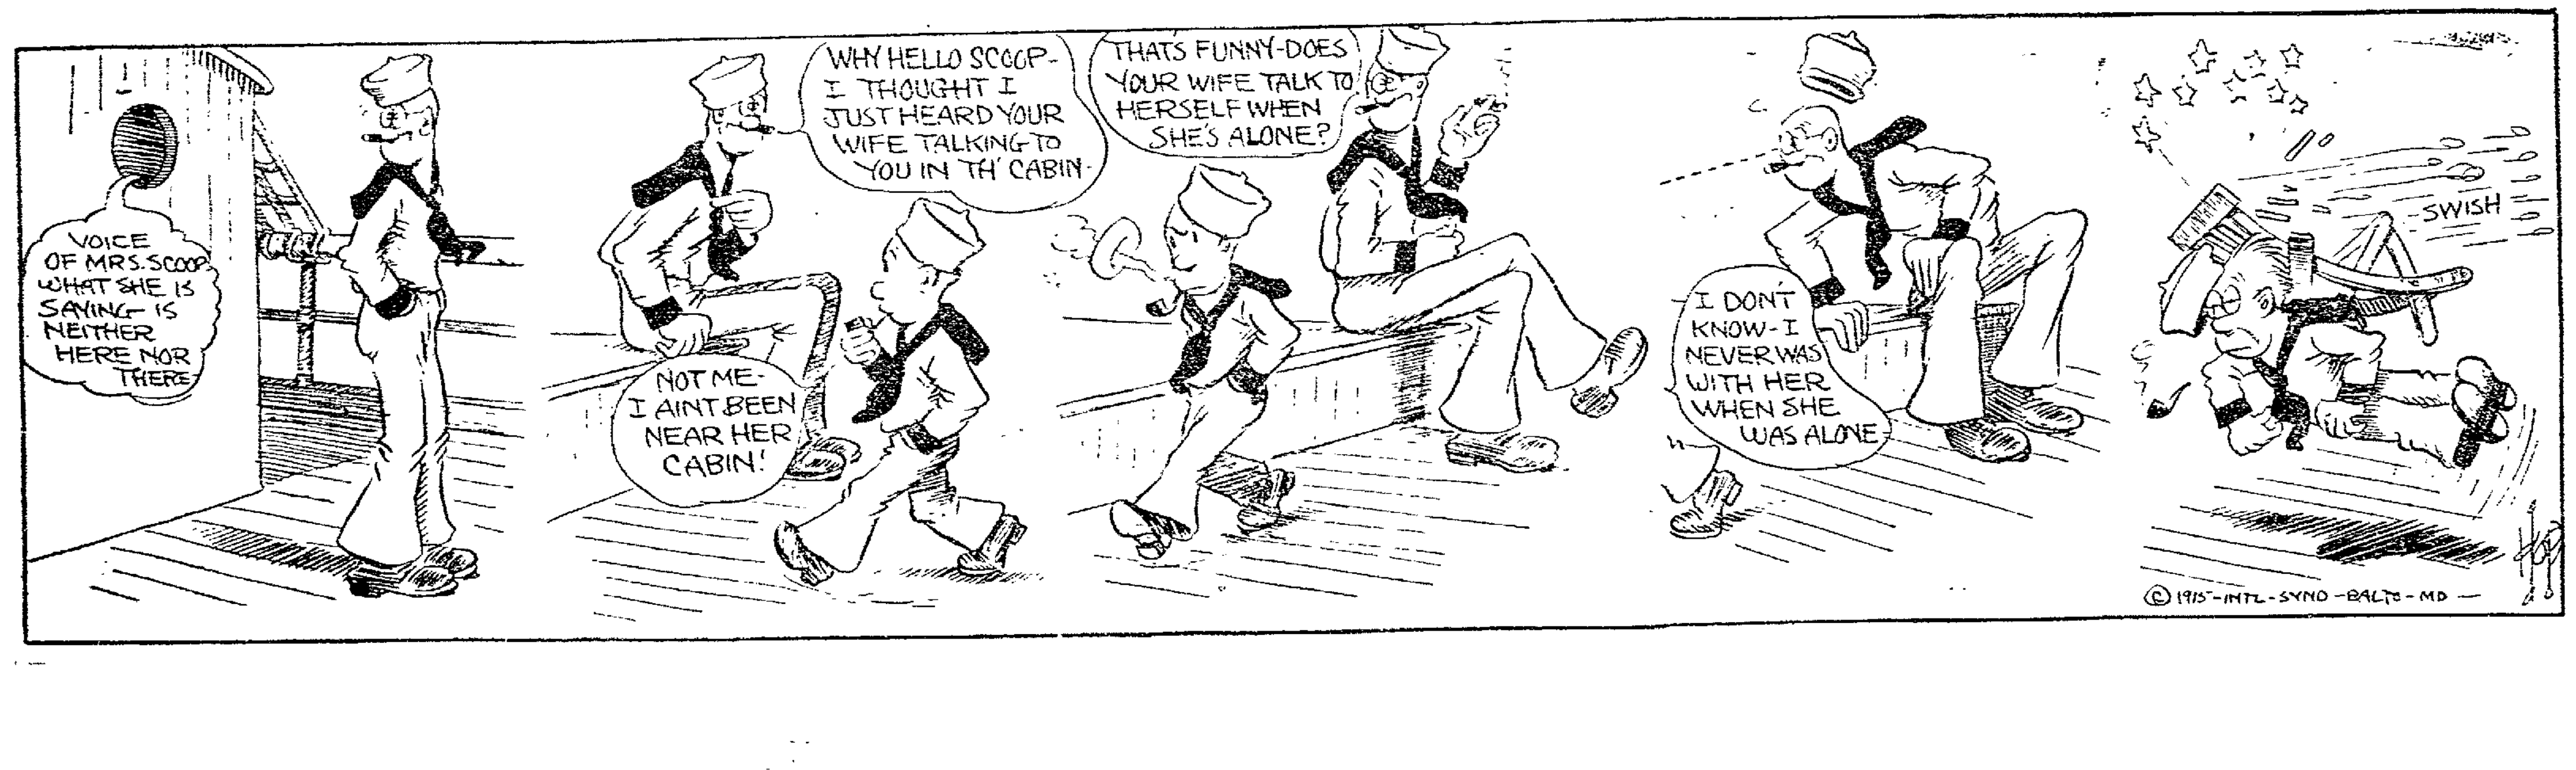

The antique features of the ritual of that day express the aspirations all men feel equally. The Trumpet Calls, constituting the central part in the worship of that Day are appeals for the moral stir which men should feel when they contemplate their experiences and seek for re-enforcement of their hopes. The calls are also an appeal to the large sense of life. Our week-day wishes and prayers are self-centered and do not give us a perspective of our relations and obligations to the community and fellowman, and of their influence upon us. But the New Year's Day offers us an occasion to re-affirm our respect for and trust in Providence which is the organization of all lives into an all-encompassing justice. The Jew comprehends this as a comfort in the case of misfortunes and as monition in the successes he may have. The function of the New Year's Day is to establish a moral judgment in our life and experiences.

There will be no Jewish services in this city but a number of local Jews will attend services in Cleveland, Pittsburg and other cities.

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Louisville, Ky.—"I think if more suffering women would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would enjoy better health. I suffered from a female trouble, and the doctors decided I had a tumorous growth and would have to be operated upon, but I refused as I do not believe in operations. I had fainting spells, bloated, and could hardly stand the pain in my left side. My husband insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful I did, for I am now a well woman. I sleep better, do all my housework and take long walks. I never fail to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my good health."—Mrs. J. M. Resch, 1900 West Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Millinery For Season Bewitching

Hats in a great variety of exquisite shapes and designs have been prepared to meet the eyes of Milady, when she goes shoppping today. The Walker Millinery Co. is having its first showing of fall hats and among the many imported designs and those made in the store's own work room are to be found a selection so varied in patterns that it would seem almost any one could be satisfied

All are so pretty that it would be a difficult task to select any particular ones for their special beauty but if any deserve special mention it is an adorable black velvet sailor shape with crown of salmon pink. Around the crown is a band of beaver and directly in the front rests a metal bug. A bow of the salmon finishes the trimming. A trimming which is finding favor this season extends directly from the top of the crown and Mrs. Walker is showing a purple tri-corn with this kind of a trimming in bird of paradise and with bands of jet beads, which are also finding much favor.

At the Bon Ton is a special display of the ever popular Gage and Fisk hats. The name alone vouches for the quality and style of these hats and the store managers have imported an unusually attractive variety of them for this occasion.

License Board's Order.
Columbus, Sept. 3.—The state liquor license commissioners issued drastic orders, affecting clubs where liquor is sold, and licensed saloonkeepers who are caught selling on Sundays and at other unlawful hours. Saloonkeepers who violate closing or other regulations will have difficulty in getting licenses renewed. Clubs will be forced to suspend operation unless they are holders of state licenses. The referendum against the McDermott liquor license act prevents that law from taking effect until approved by the voters at the November election.

Sleuths Guard Film.
Chicago, Sept. 3.—As if it were a trainload of gold, the negative film of Geraldine Farrar in "Carmen" was guarded when it arrived in Chicago, en route from California to New York. The mile or so of precious film has been insured, it is said, for $200,000. It is watched constantly by detectives, who have escorted it from the Pacific coast.

INDIAN NEWS

We always take pleasure in reading a copy of the paper known as The Colony Courier, a little paper published by and for Indians out in Oklahoma. We have occasionally reproduced some of the personal news items of The Courier in this column in the belief that our readers find equal pleasure in them.

The Indian is of a primitive race. For more than 400 years he has been in contact with our so-called civilization. In that time it must be admitted he has been slow to adopt our virtues, but quick to see and indulge in our vices. Of late years, however, he has been leaning strongly to the ways of civilization. The little paper from which the following items are taken is perhaps the best proof that the Indian is really leaving barbarism behind:

Bear Bow, Indian policeman of Seger school, went to Clinton with his big family to take in Ringling Brothers' circus. He says he seen very curious animals on this earth now living. He heard of curious animals that are now extinct, he says he seen big elephant. Pale Faces told him that this elephant had just been caught across big waters and was still wild.

Martin Buffalo says somebody rode his horse to death while he was away to Gift Dance over on North fork. Martin says he left the horse in White Man's pasture, but someone went there and rode it off and left it in Indian allotment to die. Martin Buffalo is going to have Indian Farmer Haws to investigate about this.

Little Old Camp and family and Black Feet Woman from Watonga are visiting Julia Lizzard and mother north of Colony.

Most all the Indians are away to different places visiting friends or attending to dances. Only a few families are around Colony.

Arapaho Neatha Seger is going to Wind River Agency, Wyoming, to visit his relatives and friends. His wife, Bichea Seger will not go with him, as they have not enough money for both of them to go up.

Anntia Washee and family have moved over to Spotted Bear's allotment for to pasture his horses over there, as he has no pasture over here, and will camp over there for some time.

Two Crows and his daughter, Prudie, are living with Paul Goose and family near Clinton. Paul and Prudie are cousins. Two Crows did not go over with Bad Teeth family to Watonga to attend the Willow dance and Animal dance.

WHO IS GETTING THE AMMUNITIONS?

A pertinent word is said by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to those American citizens who are so persistently concerned with our shipment of arms and ammunition. With no regard for our own interests, rights and duties these folk would go so far as to have an embargo laid on such shipments.

As the Post-Dispatch says, Germany is neither being starved nor deprived of the power to continue the war, so why should we change international law and offend all of Germany's enemies to give her a preponderating advantage? It cites the Philadelphia Record with information from Waterbury that 10 per cent. of the war material made in that town is shipped to Germany. Hartford reports 12 per cent. of the Colt company's output as having been sent to Germany ever since the war began. Bridgeport says that 15 per cent. of the arms and ammunition manufactured there since the beginning of the war has been bought and paid for by Germany.

One manufacturer is reported as saying that his information is that Germany is having little difficulty in getting South American shipments through Amsterdam and Copenhagen and possibly some through Greece, and that there has been no diminution in Bridgeport's German war supplies since Italy entered the war.

In the nine months ending with March, the Post-Dispatch says, our exports to neutral countries in Europe were $404,000,000 compared with $173,000,000 for the same time before the war. We are still exporting goods in about the same amounts to the neutral countries, which is evidence that the German-Austrian alliance must have got a large share of this output of ours. For example, our exports to Denmark for the nine months jumped from 12,000,000 tons 63,000,000, and to the Netherlands from 84,000,000 to 101,000,000. Both these countries are at Germany's gateway.

Trade is trade, so that if Germany got none of this increase the laws of trade must have been mysteriously abrogated. The plain inference is that Germany and Austria are getting their share. Add to this that neither has protested against our exercise of this trade under international law, and we shall have a truer view of the situation.

Are the Progressive brethren faltering? The stern and rockbound George W. Perkins used to delight in the martial strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," but now he suggests singing "Lead, Kindly Light."

It has been so long since Petrograd has had any favorable news to give out that no one can really blame the correspondents there from making a good deal out of the Riga naval battle.

A Missouri minister has quit preaching and has become a chauffeur. Probably figured he could get people into heaven more quickly in the latter occupation.

Kitchener declared the war would begin in May and the Kaiser says it will end in October. An observing world has slightly discounted both statements.

We believe in evolution, not merely because the world's great scholars have proved the theory, but because there are still so many monkeys among men.

BEAUTY

By Walt Mason

Much is said is sung concerning beauty, as something that won't keep and withers [illegible], [illegible] insist it's but skin deep. "Far better have a conscience tender, that balks at sin and lies, than all the glamor and the splendor of shining hair and eyes. Far better have a love of duty, a heart with virtue warm, than win a [illegible] for beauty, or have a queenly form." Why not have both, good looks and virtue, clean teeth and sterling worth? The combination will not hurt you, or raise unseemly mirth. It's good to send the heathen shekels, but that's no reason why you ought to wear a lot of freckles, or have a squinting eye. It's good to help our neighbors, always, but seek the barber, too; the saint who doesn't trim his galways obstructs the fairest view. Good women may convert the rowdy and rescue burning brands, but if the gowns they wear are dowdy, the world indiff'rent stands. "Be clean within," exclaims the preacher; the worldling vain retorts, "Desire to be a moral teacher is no excuse for warts."

NOTABLE BIRTHDAYS TODAY
Sept. 4.

Simon Lake, the American submarine inventor, who built the first submarine to operate successfully in the open sea, is 49 years old today. Capt. Lake built the Austrian submarines and his ideas were adopted by Germany. According to him, Germany planned offensive warfare with submarines ten years ago. Back in 1905 he consulted with Admiral von Tirpritz, who told him the Kaiser wanted offensive weapons of warfare. Capt. Lake submitted two types of submarines, one a small craft for defensive use and the other a large boat for offensive warfare. According to Capt. Lake, the German submarine was perfected outside of Germany, and the Kaiser had carefully planned for their use. Capt. Lake was born at Pleasantville, N. J., Sept. 4, and was educated at Franklin Institute, in Philadelphia. In 1891 he built the first experimental submarine, and three years later built the Argonaut, the first to dive and work successfully in the open sea. He has spent several years in Germany, Russia and England, designing, building and advising in the construction of under-sea boats. He has also invented submarine apparatus for pearl and sponge fishing. One of the most important adjuncts to submarine operation is the engine which he invented. Capt. Lake is a member of many engineering societies in America and Europe. He makes his home at Bridgeport, Conn.

PEOPLES' FORUM

CONGRATULATIONS

I congratulate my friend, the doctor, upon his happy find,
I believe he'll prove to be a husband good and kind:
That both may prove faithful to that solemn marriage vow,
That the weight of years will bring no tears but love the same as now,
That both may live for many years without dispute or jar,
That she will prove to be a jewel that adds luster to a Starr:
And when God sees fit to call them home to a world that's free from care,
That love divine from Starrs may shine, is my humble, earnest prayer.

POLITICS AT NELLIE.

Editor The Tribune:—

One half dozen men, each of the Republican and Democratic parties, met secretly the night of August 30 and selected a citizens' ticket for the corporation of Nellie and the special school district.

A petition was then circulated among the select ten or twelve who made the ticket and the morning of August 31 the petition was circulated among the residents of the village. Sufficient signers were secured before the voters were aware of what had been done thus depriving themselves of the right of franchise.

It seems that this select few were making a hit in the management of the school board.

Seemingly the rural voters of the Nellie special school district are to have nothing to do in the management of the school but pay taxes and support it.

The indignation of citizens of this community as a result of this corrupt act is reaching fever heat.

$1350 Seven Passenger

Drive This Car Yourself!

Arrange for a Labor Day Demonstration and Take the Ladies of Your Family Along

The Chalmers Six-40 seven-passenger touring car has the wonderful valve-in-head motor with overhead camshaft which is taking the public by storm just as the same type of motor swept everything before it at this year's speedway races.

The Labor Day holiday offers you the opportunity to drive this car yourself.

Arrange with us for demonstration on that day and take the ladies of your family along.

After all, they are the real judges of style, beauty and comfort in a motor car and will be interested in its artistic "coach" finish, aristocratic fenders and smart wheels.

You're the best judge of its mechanical features.

Step on the Accelerator

Notice the "trigger quick" response.

Feel the thrill as it leaps away with the strength of its 20% more power.

You will realize that you have a real power plant at your command.

Listen to the Motor

It has a healthy purr.

When you get behind the wheel of this car you experience a sensation of having surplus power.

You will gain a genuine affection for both the sound and feel of this motor.

There is nothing like it in any other American stock car.

Ask the Ladies About Comfort

We believe that this is the easiest riding motor car ever built but we are willing to abide by the decision of the ladies after they sit in it, or better still, ride in it.

We already have many demonstrations booked ahead. See us today or telephone for a demonstration appointment.

Then you will understand why the Chalmers Company shipped more cars in July and August than in any two previous months in its history.

New Service to Owners

Every Chalmers dealer now gives to every buyer of a Chalmers car a Service Coupon Book, each coupon redeemable for a definite amount of service at any Chalmers dealer.

The only comparisons ever made with Chalmers cars are made with higher priced cars—either foreign or American. And this is especially true of the Chalmers Six-40 at $1350—the lowest price at which Chalmers Quality has ever been sold.

The Chalmers Club

Every Chalmers owner is invited to join the Chalmers Club. Every member receives regularly without charge "The Chalmers Clubman", and a membership card commending the owner to the courtesies of Chalmers representatives everywhere.

Protected Her Property.

Lorain, O., Sept. 3. — Hauling her chair to the edge of the street and calmly occupying it for seven hours, Mrs. Harriett Hanchett, widow, not only completed a center piece for her table, but also prevented workmen from completing the curbing for a new pavement in front of her house. Mrs. Hanchett claimed the curves in a driveway which the street contractors planned would encroach on her property. The militant method won the battle and Mrs. Hanchett went into the courts at Elyria to seek relief there.

What Causes Tuberculosis?

THERE can be no tuberculosis without the germ, the tubercle bacillus. Whether the disease appears in the lungs, in the hand, in the hips, or in the eye, it is the same germ that always causes it.

Looking at it from another way, however, the germ of tuberculosis can never cause the disease unless the soil has been prepared for it. It is as if the germ were the seed and the body were the soil. You cannot raise wheat on a hard, cobblestone pavement nor can you grow corn on a sidewalk. Neither can you grow tuberculosis from the tiny plant-like germ which causes the disease, on a soil which is hard and resistant. The tissues of the body in which the disease is to develop must first be weakened and made flabby and prepared for the growth of the disease somewhat as the farmer prepares his soil before sowing his seed.

What are the causes that prepare the soil for the growth of tuberculosis germs in the body? There are first of all, a group of causes which lie within the individual himself, which we may call personal causes. Some of them may be controlled by the individual and some of them are beyond his control. Take such causes, for example, as intemperance, lack of proper food, a weakened physical condition caused by grippe, colds, pneumonia, measles, typhoid fever, etc.—these are some of the personal causes which prepare the soil for the tuberculous seed. Then there is also another group of causes which are entirely outside of the individual and which we may designate as environmental or social causes. Some of these are, for example, bad living and working conditions, lack of play and recreation facilities, unclean streets, etc.

These two groups of causes may either separately or altogether act upon one so that his normal strength and vitality, which we call resistance, is lowered and he readily becomes a prey to the disease germs which are constantly lurking about and which he may be harboring in his body without knowing it. Let us consider some of these causes a little more in detail.

Of the personal causes that lead to tuberculosis, probably intemperance may be reckoned as one of the most important. By intemperance is meant everything in the way of self indulgence that injures the body. One may be intemperate in eating and by partaking of too much food may produce permanent digestive disturbance which weakens the bodily resistance. One may be intemperate in the use of drugs or in other ways, thereby weakening the bodily resistance. The most frequent form of intemperance, however, is the use of intoxicating liquors. Any man who drinks beer, wine or whiskey to excess is preparing the soil of his lungs for the seed of tuberculosis. This is the reason why the mortality from tuberculosis among men and women who are accustomed to drink is so high, much higher according to reliable statistics than among people who do not use intoxicating liquors.

Many children from the time they are born into the world are doomed to starvation. Other people because they like candy, pie, and cake better than meat, bread, and vegetables, are starving themselves willfully. This underfeeding or lack of proper food will as surely prepare the soil for tuberculosis as if one deliberately set out to do so.

Many people have a notion that if they have apparently recovered from a bad cold or an attack of grippe or pneumonia, there is no further danger and they are perfectly safe. Oftentimes the most dangerous period in an acute disease is during the few weeks immediately after the patient is able to be up and about. It is during this time of convalescence that the seeds of disease will find a sure root if special care is not taken. Fresh air, good food, rest, and right living are the best safeguards against tuberculosis during a time such as this. The after-effects of many diseases can be avoided if the patient will continue to persist in taking care of himself just the same as he did when he was in the bed and under the doctor's orders.

Then there are those causes of tuberculosis which are entirely outside of the individual such as bad housing conditions. Dark rooms where the sun never shines are among the best breeding places possible for the germs of tuberculosis. Here they thrive in great quantities and it is almost impossible to dislodge them. Dark, filthy hallways, unclean sinks, and dirty backyards and toilets are also menaces to the health of those who live near them. Many a man can improve these conditions with a little effort if he will take the time to do so. More often, however, it is the landlord's fault that the housing conditions are not better.

Low wages, long hours of work, dark unventilated factory rooms, excessive heat, and dusty occupations are only a few of the conditions which make it easy for the seed of tuberculosis to attack the working man. The lack of proper places for play and recreation which makes a man go to the saloon at night instead of into the park or playground, is a social cause leading to tuberculosis. These social causes can be fought only by the united effort of the men and women of the community. Individuals can help but it takes all shoulders at the wheel to produce effective results.

In conclusion, remember that the soil must be right before the seed of tuberculosis can grow, and that you can contribute much towards keeping the soil of your body in such condition that no germs will find a root there.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

F. C. Howe

On The Advantages of Free Ports

Mr. F. C. Howe, Federal Commissioner of Immigration, who is one of the best American authorities on marine commerce, in discussing the relation of free ports to the development of sea trade said in part:

"Ships will go hundreds of miles out of their way to avoid ports surrounded by a tariff wall. The only way, therefore, for a country with a tariff to compete in the shipping world with a free trade country is to establish free ports at strategical points along its coast line. Germany has done so, and in a comparatively short period has built up a carrying trade which before the war was seriously threatening England's supremacy. Hamburg, one of the three German free ports, now ranks as the second greatest seaport in the world, its total foreign commerce in 1913 being only $6,000,000 under that of New York.

"The free port would offer great opportunity for financial operations, now made possible by the recent currency act. It would stimulate international banking, and would tend to shift the financial center of the world to this country. And America, by the course of events, has become the natural center for the world's financing, just as London became that center several centuries ago, when it shifted from the cities of the Netherlands. But the financial center will only move to this country when it becomes a clearing house of goods as well as of money. For credit the world over is created by currently created wealth in transit or change so that our financial expansion is dependent upon the opening up of American ports to the clearance of the wealth of the world. A port should not operate to yield a return on the investment, but to develop the prosperity of the country." In recapitulating the advantages, Mr. Howe brings out the importance of the free port in developing our shipping and linking us with South America, Asia and Africa, and then concludes:

"The most important gain is the direct gain to America. It will cheapen commodities by bringing great quantities of goods to our doors for importation or export as trade needs demand. It will stimulate the growth of export houses, which can hold goods for an indefinite period without payment of tariff dues (often equal to the cost of the article itself) for disposal to meet the trade demands of the whole world. It will upbuild international credit and shift to America an increasing and ultimately a predominant share in international exchange.

"Finally, America is the natural country to be the counter of the world. Its seacoasts face every other continent; it is the greatest of all reservoirs of raw materials and foodstuffs. In iron and steel and standardized production it is in a position to compete with the world. But international trade (and this is always overlooked) must be reciprocal. It cannot be one-sided. And credit balances cannot for any prolonged period be paid in gold. They can only be paid by exchange of wealth."

True Secret of Keeping Youthful Looking

(The Beauty Seeker.)

"The real secret of keeping young-looking and beautiful," says a well-known hygienist, "is to keep the liver and bowels normally active. Without these requisites, poisonous waste products remain in the system, polluting the blood and lodging in various organs, tissues, joints. One becomes flabby, obese, nervous, mentally sluggish, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow of face.

"But to get liver and bowels working as they ought, without producing evil after-effects, has been the problem. Fortunately, there is a prescription of unquestioned merit, which may now be had in convenient tablet form. Its value is due largely to an ingredient derived from the humble May apple, or its root, which has been called 'vegetable calomel' because of its effectiveness—though of course it is not to be classed with the real calomel of mercurial origin. There is no habit-forming constituent in 'sentanel' tablets—that's the name—and their use is not followed by weakness or exhaustion. On the contrary, these harmless vegetable tablets tend to impart tone and elasticity to the relaxed intestinal wall. Sentanel tablets, which may be procured from any druggist—a dime's worth will do—will prove a revelation to any constipated, liver-troubled person."

Chief Cause of Pimples, Blotches, Sallow Skin

(Messenger of Health.)

Unsightly eruptions, pimples, boils, blotches, sallow or muddy skin, usually are due to a sluggish liver, a constipated bowel—and a polluted blood stream as a consequence. How foolish in such cases to resort to outward applications, which can never have natural, permanent results. If more people only knew it, there is a very simple remedy to be found in any drug store, and it is as effective as it is harmless and quick acting. It is an old formula, long recognized [illegible] the medical profession, which has been put in tablet form, and at such small cost [illegible] one need now be deprived of its wonderful benefits.

"Sentanel tablets"—that's the name—are entirely vegetable and there's no habit-forming ingredient. You need only get about a dime's worth and swallow one at bedtime to realize there's nothing else quite so good for the purpose. The action in the morning is so easy, so soothing, and instead of a weakening after-effect, you feel truly refreshed and invigorated. Sentanel tablets are not only the finest remedy known for constipation and torpid liver, [illegible] mildest, [illegible] treatment for [illegible] difficulties of the [illegible].

Great Demand for New Constipation Remedy

They say that the [illegible] of the "sentanel tablet" as a [illegible] for [illegible] has resulted in an extraordinary demand for this remarkable [illegible]. It seems to have [illegible] particularly with those [illegible] constipation, who were quick to recognize its advantages over [illegible] and the usual laxatives.

Sentanel tablets, aside from their efficacy, [illegible] to a tendency [illegible] natural [illegible] Also, instead of [illegible] the [illegible] influence. Instead of weakening, they add tone to the intestinal wall. And they work so easily and gently, they are of course preferred on this account to the violently acting purgatives. Their inexpensiveness is another reason for the popularity of sentanel tablets. One need procure only a dime's worth, and take one tablet upon retiring, to be convinced that the ideal remedy for constipation, torpid liver, and their many evil consequences, has finally been found.—Druggists Review.

The RED MIST

A TALE OF CIVIL STRIFE

By RANDALL PARRISH

ILLUSTRATIONS By C. D. RHODES

COPYRIGHT A. C. McCLURG & CO.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Confederate Sergeant Wyatt of the Staunton artillery is sent as a spy to his native county on the Green Briar by General Jackson.

CHAPTER II—Wyatt meets a mountaineer named Jem Taylor, with whom he rides to a house beyond Hot Springs.

CHAPTER III—In the house Wyatt and Taylor meet Major Harwood, father of Noreen and an old neighbor of Wyatt, who is sent to bed while the two other men talk. Wyatt becomes suspicious, and finds that Taylor has murdered Harwood and escaped.

CHAPTER IV—Wyatt changes to the U. S. cavalry uniform he has with him, and rides away in the night, running into a detachment of Federal cavalry, to whom he identifies himself as Lieutenant Raymond, Third U. S. cavalry, by means of papers with which he has been provided. Captain Fox finds Harwood's body and follows Taylor's trail.

CHAPTER V—Fox and Wyatt believe Taylor to be old Ned Cowan. The detachment is ambushed. Wyatt escapes to the Green Briar country and goes to Harwood's apparently deserted home.

CHAPTER VI—Wyatt finds Noreen Harwood alone in her home. She does not recognize him, and he introduces himself as Lieutenant Raymond.

CHAPTER VII—Parson Nichols comes to the house and tells Noreen of her father's death.

CHAPTER VIII—Wyatt forces Parson Nichols to confess that he has been sent in advance of Anse Cowan, who proposes to marry Noreen at once, and so quiet title to the land in dispute between the Cowans and Noreen's dead father.

CHAPTER IX—Anse Cowan and his gang arrive and find the preacher bound in a closet. Wyatt and Noreen have concealed themselves in the attic.

CHAPTER X—The Cowan gang ransacks the house but fails to find the hidden couple. Wyatt tells Noreen who he is.

CHAPTER XI—Wyatt and Noreen return to the second floor and await the next move of the gang, forcing the preacher to silence.

CHAPTER XII—Unable to escape while the gang is on the first floor and around the house, Wyatt proposes to marry Noreen to protect her from Cowan. She accepts and Wyatt forces the preacher to marry them.

CHAPTER XIII—Cowan's gang is driven off by Federal troops, one of whose officers is the real Lieutenant Raymond. Wyatt is trapped, though Noreen attempts to defend him.

CHAPTER XIV—Wyatt is taken to Lewisburg for trial as a spy.

"You!" The lieutenant broke into a laugh. "By Jove, you fit the part. Whitlock, did you ever hear of the fellow?"

The captain rubbed his glasses.

"Are you the Baptist preacher at Cane Ridge?" he asked doubtfully.

"For twenty years I have ministered to that congregation; the young woman can vouch for my labor."

"Then, I presume you are also acquainted with this fellow?" questioned Raymond impatiently.

Nichols turned his glance again in my direction, but his gray face was devoid of interest.

"I have no knowledge of the young man," he asserted solemnly, "but I knew the old judge well. The resemblance is strong, and I have no doubt but he is a son. The father was a Christian and a gentleman."

"And a rebel, I presume?"

"Judge Wyatt died before the breaking out of the war, sir, but was known throughout these parts as a Unionist."

There was a silent pause, Whitlock fumbling at his eyeglasses, Raymond a perplexed frown on his face, staring first at Nichols and then at me, as though more than half convinced he was being made a fool of. The girl had seated herself in a chair, and was leaning forward, her face hidden. The lieutenant turned and strode across the room, glancing out the window; then back again.

"Well, we cannot remain here discussing the matter," he said tartly. "If we do we may have a [illegible] fight on our hands before we are safely [illegible] Lewisburg. [illegible] squarely in front of me. [illegible] here.

It is time you did some talking. You haven't opened your mouth yet."

"There has been no occasion," I replied pleasantly. "The others have told all you need to know without my even being questioned."

"I have a mind to search you," he retorted, completely losing his temper.

"At your pleasure, lieutenant," I spoke coldly enough, although there was a catch in my throat at sudden memory of the paper I bore containing his name. "All [illegible] ing what you meant [illegible] Harwood's uniform."

We were still looking defiantly at each other's eyes when a trooper appeared in the open doorway [illegible] and said something in a [illegible] Whitlock. I failed to catch the words spoken, but heard the captain answer.

"Certainly, corporal; have him come up at once."

The soldier disappeared down the hall, and the lieutenant stepped back across the room, bending his head to whisper something [illegible] into Whitlock's ear. My eyes followed his movement and then [illegible] the face of the girl; she sat motionless, the long lashes shading her eyes, the only [illegible]

the swift rise and fall of her bosom. Then a man came hastily into the room through the opened door. My heart leaped into my throat at sight of him—he was Captain Fox.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Prisoner.

The captain was hatless, and a bloody handkerchief was wound about his head; his uniform was torn and black with mud. He saw Whitlock first, and gripped his hand warmly, his glance straying from the face of the little captain to the other occupants of the room.

"Gad, but it is good to see a blue uniform again," he exclaimed heartily. "What was the row here, Fred—some guerrilla work? Ah! by Jove!" his eyes brightening as he recognized me. "Raymond, I am glad to see you again," and he strode forward, his lips smiling, his hand held out. "Old Ned swore to me you were dead, but the sergeant said you got away at the first rush. Not even a scratch—hey—?"

"Just a moment, please," and the interested lieutenant interrupted him by a hand on the shoulder. "I believe we have never met before but I presume you are Captain Fox?"

The latter turned, a trifle indignant at the other's manner.

"I am; what of it?"

"Only, I am naturally somewhat interested in your identification of this fellow. To us he has claimed the name of Wyatt, but you address him as Raymond. What Raymond did he represent himself to be?"

Fox stared about in surprise at the faces surrounding him, scarcely able to collect his scattered wits.

"Why," he answered, as though half in doubt of his own words, "Lieutenant Charles H. Raymond, Third cavalry, on recruiting service. I—I met him at Hot Springs, and he showed me his papers. Isn't—isn't he all right?"

"Well, you can draw your own conclusion," returned the lieutenant, his thin lips curled in a sneer, "for I am Raymond, Third cavalry. This man is a rebel spy."

[illegible] impossible; I knew that, for I had [illegible] the chance. Both Whitlock and the lieutenant—the latter with revolver drawn—stood [illegible] the window. [illegible]

"I refuse to answer."

"No? Well, Ramsay will get a reply out of you!"

"I hardly think so, sir. You hang spies, but do not torture them."

"True enough," and Whitlock stepped to the door. "Sergeant, bring a file of men, and take charge of this prisoner. There is nothing to detain us longer. We have extra horses, Captain Fox, and you will ride with us as far as Lewisburg, Miss Harwood, I presume you have no desire to remain here alone—indeed, I could not permit it. Better bind the fellow's hands, Harper, search him first for weapons, and whatever papers he may carry. Mount him on that old artillery horse, and wait for us."

Raymond watched the proceedings carefully, taking my credentials as a Federal recruiting officer from the hands of the sergeant, and reading them over with a grim smile. I gave small heed to the glance of satisfaction with which he regarded me, and only ventured to look once toward the girl, as the soldiers roughly bound my hands. She had turned away, and was staring out of the open window. I marched out into the hall closely surrounded by the guard, my thought less concerned with my own fate than with her feeling toward me. Suddenly the truth revealed itself to my mind that I loved the woman I had so strangely married.

It is indeed odd how the human mind works, and now this new discovery completely eclipsed every other consideration. The thought of possible escape, of any means of defense never occurred to me. All my memory retained was that last glimpse of her slender figure at the window and the silhouette of her averted face. What was her thought of me? In the moment of her first surprise she had sprung to my defense, but as soon as she could consider the conditions, her whole nature would turn against me—even now the feeling of disgust had come. She had turned coldly away, hating the very sight of me—staring out of the window until I should disappear, dreading lest I prove cur enough to boast of our relationship. Well, the lady need not fear that. My fate would be swiftly and surely settled—a drumhead court-martial at Lewisburg, a verdict of guilty, and a firing squad at dawn. No one need ever know, for the preacher's lips could be easily closed. And perhaps Lieutenant Raymond—Bah! my teeth clenched angrily at thought of him, and I tramped on down the stairs to the gruff order of the sergeant.

There were three other prisoners, sallow-faced, roughly dressed mountaineers, one wounded in the arm, but I was kept separated from them with a special guard. Within ten minutes the entire command was in saddle and moving slowly northward. The lieutenant rode in my rear for the first mile, watchful and suspicious. Noreen was riding in advance of the column between the two captains. A gray, circular cape concealed her slender form, but I could observe the frequent turning of her head as she apparently conversed vivaciously with her attentive escorts. Her show of utter, heartless indifference hurt and blinded me. I actually believed the girl was glad of my capture; that she rejoiced at the knowledge that within a few hours she would be freed from all the consequences of our rash act. It was the reaction which had given her such high spirits, the exhilarating sense of escape, a [illegible] so profound as to cause her to even forget her father's death. This was the conception which took possession of me, obliterating every other possibility.

At first the thought served to numb my feelings [illegible] toward [illegible] all interest in life died within me. Then pride came to the rescue, and I straightened up in the saddle. She was my wife—that slender, laughing girl. Of course I would never claim her, no word would ever pass my lips to bring her pain and humiliation. No one would ever know—excepting us two. But if I did speak she could not deny, and she must realize why I had kept silent, why I had even gone down to death with closed lips.

And then there was yet a chance! While there was life there was hope and I was [illegible] enough, and sufficiently reckless, to accept of any opportunity. There might occur a relaxation in the vigilance of the guard, some delay at Lewisburg, possibly a forwarding of me to headquarters at Charleston, some sudden, unexpected opening through which I could squeeze. I was ready enough to try, however desperate the occasion; and if such a chance did serve, the end might not come merely with escape. I could see her again; talk with her face to face. It became a fascinating dream, an inspiration—at last a grim determination.

Through the mud we rode steadily on, following the pike that curved along the base of the mountains, and finally into the streets of Lewisburg.

CHAPTER XV.

I Choose Death.

I knew the town well, and few changes had occurred since last I walked those streets hand in hand with my father. It had not grown any larger, and thus far the war had wrought little damage. The most of life in the sleepy old town centered about the Frost hotel, a three-story wooden structure, where the officers of the garrison lodged and the courthouse, a dignified edifice of red brick, a block beyond, where in other days my father presided on the bench, now completely surrounded by a military camp. There were more Federal soldiers here than I had expected to see, but a remark exchanged between two of my guard informed me that most of these had arrived during the night—a regiment of Ohio troops, and a battery of light artillery, destined to assist in a contemplated attack on Covington.

The head of our little column halted in front of the hotel, but Whitlock shouted a command to the sergeant and we rode on past the guard closing up tightly. I kept my face straight ahead, determined to make no sign, but, nevertheless, I had a glimpse of Noreen, standing at her horse's head and, for an instant, I felt certain her eyes were resting on me. Then Raymond spoke to her, touching her sleeve familiarly with his hand to attract attention, and she smiled up into his face, as if in answer to some witty remark. This was the last glimpse I had as we clattered on down the street.

At the courthouse steps the sergeant turned me over to the officer of the day, and I was marched into the basement. The old jail had evidently been burned, for I could see the roof had fallen in, and the stone walls were blackened with smoke, but the lower story of the courthouse was hostile enough, the windows barred, the walls strong and thick. The place in which they thrust me had at one time protected the county records, was perhaps nine feet square, with one narrow window high up in the wall, and an iron door. The floor and walls were of stone, and the ceiling beyond reach. A soldier threw in a box, to be utilized as a seat, together with a couple of blankets.

"There, Johnny," he said carelessly, "I guess you'll stay here till you're wanted. There'll be some grub along after awhile."

The iron door clanged behind him and I heard the sharp click of a heavy lock, then regular steps passing back and forth across the stone floor, proof that a sentinel had been posted. There seemed little need of one as I sat down on the box and stared disconsolately about. The window afforded ample light, but no hope of escape. The shelves on which had once reposed the records of Green Briar county were of iron, as a safeguard against fire, with a sheet of iron at their back, concealing the wall behind. My heart gave a sudden leap. As a boy I had played about this building, invading every nook and corner. I could even recall when those shelves were first installed, and I had sat almost where I was sitting then and watched the workmen bolt them into their present position. It was before my father bought the place out on the ridge and we were living only a block down the street. Those shelves rested against the big chimney, and there was an opening leading into it across which they had nailed a tin protector before they fastened the iron to the wall.

If I could once get in behind that iron plate the way out would not be such a hard or difficult one to travel.

I Gave Small Heed to the Glance of Satisfaction He Gave Me.

The chimney was large; I recalled standing inside in the fireplace once [illegible] and looking up [illegible] perceive the light of the [illegible] constructed of irregular [illegible] would afford [illegible] and grip for the hands in climbing—no easy job, of course, but not impossible for one [illegible] make the attempt.

REPORT BRITISH TRANSPORT SUNK

May Be Echo of Torpedoing of Royal Edward.

Berlin, Sept. 3.—A British transport struck a mine off the entrance to the Dardanelles and sank with all on board, according to special dispatches received from Sofia, and carried by the Overseas News agency. The vessel carried 320 officers, 1250 soldiers and 300 sailors, the dispatches add, a total of 1870 men. The bodies of 600 of the men drowned in this disaster have been recovered.

The British government officially announced on Aug. 17 that the British transport Royal Edward had been sunk on Saturday, Aug. 17, in the Aegean sea by a German submarine. The number of troops on board was given as 1350, with 220 officers and men of the crew, and it was stated that about 600 were saved.

In the absence of a date for the sinking of the transport reported through Sofia it is uncertain whether this refers to the sinking of the Royal Edward or to the loss of another transport by the British.

Berlin, Sept. 3.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's army has captured Grodno, the last fort in the czar's second line of defence held by the Russians. German troops, it states, [illegible] forced the passage of the Niemen river after capturing the Russian forts. There was fighting in the streets of Grodno. BOSTON WOOL

Boston, Sept. 3.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: "The wool market has been decidedly quieter waiting the opening of the London auctions and the official decision respecting the release of cross breds under the embargo for importation to the country. Prices have remained very steady.

"The situation in the goods market is not materially changed, although a fair business is heavyweight repeats for the fall and winter is exported in woolens and worsteds. The business in wool, however, indicates that the woolen manufactures are buying more generally than the worsted men."

SAYS SHE IS INNOCENT.

Mrs. Mohr Claims She Knows Nothing of Killing of Her Husband.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 3.—"I am absolutely innocent," said Mrs. Elizabeth Blair Mohr, after spending the night with her two children at home following her release on $5,000 bail.

She absolutely denied all knowledge of the alleged conspiracy that resulted in the murder of her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, and the wounding of his secretary, Miss Emily Burger. It was the first statement made by Mrs. Mohr since her arrest in connection with the murder and her release on bail by Judge George T. Brown of the superior court.

The funeral of Dr. Mohr, held at his residence, was arranged by Mrs. Mohr and carried out under her direction. It was private.

"I knew nothing about the dread of conspiracy until the detectives told me," Mrs. Mohr declared. "They shot and killed Dr. Mohr and then tried to frame me up. Yes, it was a frame [illegible] But my lawyers will have to give you all the information."

Taft Day at the Exposition.

San Francisco, Sept. 3.—Former President William Howard Taft advocated preparedness for war, and detailed the means to that end, in an address at the Panama Pacific exposition, delivered at Taft day exercises. In the ceremonies preceding the address Taft, who, while president of the United States, broke ground for the exposition four years ago, again took in hand the silver spade he used then and planted a California redwood tree in "Taft Circle."
